Notes from the President

Shane Green

I am pleased to announce that Utah's bid for hosting the SRM National Meetings in 2017 was accepted. This will be the fifth time that Utah has hosted the meeting. The first SRM meeting was held in Salt Lake City in 1948, returning in 1961, 1985, 2004. In 2017 the Utah Section will host the meetings in St. George. This change of venue should result in some fair weather and unique prospects for tours. The Co-chairs for this meeting are Tom Monaco with ARS in Logan and Randall Violett with SUU in Cedar City. Many committees and responsibilities will need to be filled, so all members should be prepared to pitch in with their ideas and support. It is an opportunity for us to show off our state and our good works to our associates from other parts of the country.

As rangeland professionals, our daily struggle for sound management of rangelands is enclosed in the constraints of the physical surroundings, biological settings, and historical legacy of our predecessors. In Utah our history is rich with the story of the land. The historical legacy aspect must not be downplayed or ignored. Keeping this perspective at the forefront can be limiting or liberating depending on the situation. That is an introduction to a much longer piece of text than I have room for here, so suffice it to say that the unique facets of range management in Utah should make for an engaging and enlightening meeting in 2017.
